The Holographic Canvas Chapter One audio

Chapter One: Reality

The Holographic Canvas explores many possibilities, one of which raises the question “is earth as we know it but a matrix or system of programs?” “Is death then a necessary process or is it simply part of the matrix program? Is it then possible that the concept of dying will cease to exist once humanity uncovers the deception?” Another idea is proposed that human bodies are vehicles not yet turned on but designed to make molecular modifications according to the vibration of our consciousness. The book explores our existence in a holographic world, a virtual game; an assortment of illusions strung together by the brain and the mind. It’s an exploration of the illusion of a solid world generated by fluid movements against a canvas of energy, all of which is taking place against the backdrop of the void.

Your gift is the audio version of Chapter One titled Reality. It explores the nature of the game called “reality” and our interaction and exploration of it through these bio-ships called bodies. This chapter further examines reality as a result of cosmic technology.
